Subject: Hen Island response

Paul,
I just spoke with Kevin and we believe the City's response should be something like:

The Building Department is looking into the issues raised by Ray Tartaglione regarding property maintenance and sanitary sewer issues. However, a preliminary review of the City's files indicate that the homes located on Hen Island were built prior to the City keeping copies of certificates of occupancy or other building department records and it is not possible to determine what was built at a particular time and what the law required at that time. In addition, the Building Department has visited Hen Island on several occasions to determine if there were any recent building code violations. It has always been the City's policy to address any violations of which it is aware and which the City can confirm and the City will continue to do so on Hen Island.

We may want to confirm the above statement with Vinny. Let me know if you have questions/concerns.
